BACK TO THE GARDEN

by Scott Kalechstein

Verse

All the judging we're doing is leading us to ruin,
And making our spirit sad.
And them apples we're eating have been
so self-defeating;
Hiding and dividing into good and bad.

It's time to make the change, back to square one.
Back to the truth that we're children of the sun.
A new day is dawning. A child is born.
There's one of us here and we're six billion strong.

Chorus

We're going back to the garden, back to the garden,
back to the garden again.
We're going back to the garden, back to the garden,
back to the garden again.

Verse

There's a seed that's been sowing,
two thousand years of growing
With fruit that is out of sight.
And it's time for the picking,
as something in you quickens.
The tree of Galilee is finally ripe.

It's time to make the change, back to square one.
Back to the truth that we're children of the sun.
A new day is dawning. A child is born.
There's one of us here and we're six billion strong.

Chorus

Bridge

People everywhere are learning that's its time to share.
No one can find peace of mind alone.
We can come to trust the power that created us.
It's love that brings us all the way back Home.

Verse

It's time to make the change, back to square one.
Back to the truth that we're children of the sun.
A new day is dawning. A child is born.
There's one of us here and we're six billion strong.
